LA SALLE UNIVERSITY'S WEEKLY INFORMATION CIRCULAR

NOVEMBER 18, 1994

LA SALLE UNIVERSITY

OFFICE OF INSTITUTIONAL RESEARCH
PHILADELPHIA, PA 19141 • (215) 951-1428

November 16, 1994

Dear La Salle Colleague,

In September, Brother President Burke created a Presidential Task Force on Information Technology with the charge to prepare, by March 1995, a five-year plan for information technology at La Salle. In formulating a plan, the task force is charged to determine the level of satisfaction with the present state of technology on the campus and anticipated needs for the future.

As chair of the task force, I am writing to you today to urge your participation in a series of the surveys that will be conducted by the task force over the next two weeks to collect this information. All faculty, administrators, and staff will be receiving a "Computer User Satisfaction Survey" designed to measure satisfaction with current technology and services. Additionally, the task force will be sending a faculty needs assessment survey to all full-time faculty, while all administrative directors will be receiving an administrator needs assessment survey.

I recognize that many of us have received several surveys for other purposes already this semester. I want to encourage you, however, to complete the surveys from the Information Technology Task Force. Your opinions and insights are vitally important and will be given great weight in the development of the task force's planning report.

Thank you in advance for your time and cooperation.

Sincerely,

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read "Stephen W. Thorpe".

Stephen W. Thorpe, Ed.D.

Director of Institutional Research

Chair, Presidential Task Force on Information Technology

1994 - 1995 FACULTY SENATE
MINUTES, MEETING # 5
OCTOBER 26, 1994

Present: Marjorie Allen, Paul Brazina, David Cichowicz, Gary Clabaugh, Preston Feden, Marianne Gauss, David George, Patricia Gerrity, Richard Geruson, William Grosnick, William Hall, FSC, Prafulla Joglekar, Steven Meisel, Emery Mollenhauer, FSC, Elizabeth Paulin, Joseph Seltzer, Edward Sheehy, FSC, Stephen Smith, Zane Wolf.

Excused: Michael Kerlin, Joseph Volpe.

Guests: Gregory Bruce, Daniel Pantaleo

The President called the meeting to order at 2:35 p.m.

The President reported on the last meeting of University Council, at which two reports were given. In the first report the Vice President of Enrollment Services highlighted the need to increase Financial Assistance. In the second report the Vice President for Business Affairs discussed the final figures for 1993-94. Although the quasi-endowment increased last year, the rate of growth was significantly lower than in the past and was largely the result of new endowment gifts and a revaluation of the investment portfolio. Both reports were seen as being grim indicators of the current situation. Indeed, President Burke used this opportunity at Council to discuss the need for cut backs. At this point, a Senator requested that the Senate reexamine the University's retrenchment program. Additionally, there was a discussion of the need to find realistic measures of what "break-even" means in a University setting. Another Senator remarked that the cost of adding new students is marginal, whereas the revenue they produce is all gain. There was a caution issued at this point by yet another Senator. The University must be careful not to increase enrollment by lowering the admission standards. In rebuttal another Senator remarked that changing standards does not imply lowered standards. A few Senators cautioned that support structures need to be firmly in place in order to serve students who enter with skills, particularly in writing and math, which are below those which have traditionally been expected of La Salle students. One Senator asked why the news of a future of 13 consecutive years of an increasing 18 year old population is not perceived as being more hopeful. He was told that although there will continue to be more and more 18 year-olds in the population, a larger percentage of them will be of lower socioeconomic status and less able to afford college.

The President then introduced Gregory Bruce, the newly appointed Coordinator of Budget and Planning. The Coordinator then proceeded to describe both the process and his place in it. He emphasized that this is a temporary position as he believes that once the proper process is in place, there will no longer be a need for a full time coordinator. It is his role to ensure that there is a process to match planning with budgeting. The Board of Trustees had mandated that a strategic plan be in place by May, 1995. To support this, there are a variety of structures being developed. The most significant point is the change in the role of University Council. University Council will be the focal point of the planning and budgeting process. As part of the support to this process there are two committees which will inform University Council. The Planning and Budgeting Advisory Committee (PBAC) will be chaired by the Coordinator and will have representatives of the five branches of the University. This committee will primarily serve as a resource, in technical terms, to the other components of the planning process. The other committee is the Strategic Analysis and Assessment Task Force. Although the actual structure of this committee is not yet decided, it will most likely be comprised of 10 people, half of whom are faculty.

At this point, a Senator asked if this really represented a significant change in the role of University Council, insofar as Council has always been advisory. In answer, there was emphasis on the new access to information which all Council members would have. Additionally, Council is now being asked to make recommendations to the Board. Another Senator asked if Council would be given appropriate training, in order to be facile with the various documents, primarily financial, which would be part of this process. The answer was yes. Another question was raised of when this process was going to start, if committees have not yet been seated. The Coordinator answered that this year, as the first year, would necessarily be less structured. Many standing committees, for instance the Academic Affairs Committee, are currently preparing to feed information into the Strategic Analysis and Assessment Task Force and PBAC when they do form. Next, a Senator asked how was the discussion of faculty compensation going to be addressed this year. This led to another question of whether FAC members would be the best people to be nominated for the Strategic Analysis and Assessment Task Force.

After considerable discussion another Senator summarized his understanding of the new initiatives. In his opinion there are three levels in operation. The first is the development of a Strategic Plan, which will represent that present and future picture of the University. The second is the creation of a process which will integrate this Strategic plan with the operational reality of the University. The last piece is the generation of multiple scenarios which will show how the new plan can work given the resources and reasonable projections of the University. Another Senator remarked that there is considerable research showing that long range strategic plans don't work; by the time they are formed, they are obsolete. In answer, it was emphasized that the plan needs to be a living breathing document to ensure that behaviors change and the community reaches its common goals.

In answer to a question of the process by which University Council will approve of the academic budget, the Provost described the process as follows. Initially, University Council will establish the parameters for the budget. Then the Provost will meet with the Deans, who will have previously met with their Chairs, and budgets will be developed. Lastly, University Council will meet and prioritize between new initiative; and standard operating budget items.

A Senator commented that the mission of the University is teaching, and faculty are the contact with the students. Has the model shifted so much that faculty is now being viewed as "profit centers?" Another Senator spoke of his perception that there is a tendency to manage by surprise. Yet another Senator asked about the seeming contradiction between the paired statements: "Faculty will be part of the process" and "People are already working on it." In answer to both of these questions, the Coordinator suggested that better, clearer communications are essential. Another Senator asked what was the need for a new planning process. Isn't planning the normal responsibility of the administration? In response, the Provost explained that Council has faculty representation and the Academic Deans. This process brings inclusiveness to decision making. Growth by substitution will be necessary in the future. New programs will be asked, "What will it cost? Who will money be taken from to pay for it? How will it benefit the overall university community?". Professional accountability will be required.

A Senator asked if the University was headed toward the "Bennington Solution" where a decision was made by "consensus" and when it was all over, the community was shocked and unhappy. Other Senators cautioned that faculty do not want to be co-opted into appearing to be part of the decision-making process when decisions are in fact made elsewhere. Another Senator asked if other types of models could not be investigated. The Provost answered that although not everyone will leave this process "happy", they will be better informed. A Senator strongly suggested that when alternatives are examined in light of cost-benefit analysis, intangible, non-monetary values be considered and recognized.

At this point the Provost passed out a revised edition of a document currently being evaluated by Academic Affairs entitled, Characteristics of the La Salle Learning Environment, Personal, Profession, Committed. The President thanked the Provost and Coordinator for their contributions.

The Senate then began an executive session, where the need to be more assertive and proactive was discussed. In part, concerns generated by the letter which the community received from the President was discussed. One Senator raised his concern about discussing detailed financial reports in front of the student representatives who sit on University Council. Senators raised concerns about how decisions were being made on campus, or even if they were being made. Another Senator emphasized the need for the faculty to cooperate with this process for the greater good of the entire University Community. One Senator argued that faculty as a whole are expecting leadership from the Senate. A decision was made to have each senator inform the members of the Academic and Faculty Affairs Committee of the Senate of their expectations of the of the new strategic planning process. The Academic and Faculty Affairs Committee would then compile a list of faculty concerns.

The minutes from the meeting of October 14, 1994 were approved with some modifications. The vote was 9 in favor with 4 abstentions.

The meeting was adjourned at 5:20 p.m.

Respectfully submitted,
Marianne S. Gauss, Secretary
Faculty Senate

RE: They Really Liked Us! - 1st Internship Fair

Thanks to the La Salle community for making Career Planning's first Internship Fair a success. And special thanks to the F.Y.E. Instructors who encouraged freshmen to attend - all classes were well represented. More than 225 students turned out to meet with forty companies and representatives of ten academic departments. Every one of the companies who returned their evaluations indicated that they would be interested in returning next year.

Here are just a few of the complimentary things employers said about La Salle students:

"All of the students displayed interest and enthusiasm. We look forward to working with them."

Congressman Borski's Staff

"Every student I met was well dressed and prepared. Definitely the best internship fair I've attended!"

Northwestern Mutual Life

"This internship fair was very worthwhile! The students presented themselves in a professional manner and most of the ones we spoke with had resumes. This is the first internship job fair that we have attended and we are looking forward to continuing to attend in the future."

Rosenbluth Travel

"An enjoyable experience. It was very nice meeting your students who seem to be highly motivated and very articulate. The atmosphere was nice also. We look forward to attending next years fair."

Fair Housing Council of Montgomery County

"I have never been disappointed at a La Salle career event. Your students are excellent well-mannered, well-groomed and well-prepared. Keep up the good work!"

WPEN/WMGK

Best news of all, based on immediate feedback, companies indicated that 150 internship interviews will be arranged.

Again, your help and support was appreciated!

AIDS - ALIVE

AIDS Awareness at La Salle is Vital Education

C/O - Campus Ministry Center - Box 841

AIDS Alive, AIDS Awareness at La Salle is Vital Education, is a group on campus that promotes AIDS awareness and education at La Salle. We are currently organizing and planning events to take place on campus for World AIDS Day on Thursday, December 1. These will include: numerous tables sponsored by different campus organizations providing students with information about several different aspects of AIDS, a guest speaker from a well known AIDS organization, who is HIV positive and a portion of the AIDS quilt that has been on display in Washington D.C. The day is intended to be very educational and thought provoking. A large amount of work is being put towards the project to ensure its success. We are therefore asking professors to strongly encourage students to attend the event. Students and faculty are encouraged to come to the ballroom and chapel (to view the quilt) any time between 10:30 and 2:30 on Thursday, December 1. The guest speaker is scheduled to speak in the ballroom at 12:30, which is a universal free period.

We appreciate your consideration and support of our efforts in continuing to promote AIDS awareness and education at La Salle.
